

News Clippings From My Time As An Interdimensional
Time Traveler

Isaiah Markle

November 6, 2023

Background

During the pandemic, I finally had the opportunity to develop some of my ideas regarding the space-time continuum and multiverse theory. Over the course of 14 months, I created a device that can travel through space and time, entering alternate dimensions. I have already sent the device to a parallel universe that is not very permutationally distant from our own, where it gathered data revealing differences in the timelines. This revealed a timeline divergence starting in July 2020, eventually resulting in Donald Trump winning the 2020 presidential election. Below are selected “news clippings” from late 2020 and early 2021, showing significant timeline divergences.

MSNBC: President Trump's Risky Vaccine Gambit: Putting Economy First, Safety Second

In a stunning yet predictable display of disregard for scientific consensus and public safety, President Trump once again propagated a web of falsehoods during a recent press conference. He has doubled-down on his shameless touting of the alleged safety and effectiveness of several experimental COVID-19 vaccines despite the glaring absence of FDA approval.

Under the administration's so-called "Operation Warp Speed," the development of these vaccines has been expedited at an unprecedented pace. While the urgency of finding a solution to the pandemic is clear, the potential risks and unknown effectiveness associated with these hastily designed shots cannot be ignored. Utilizing RNA technology, these vaccines cause the body's own cells to produce COVID-19 molecular material, a departure from traditional vaccine approaches. This novel method raises legitimate concerns about both safety and effectiveness.

President Trump, however, has peddled these vaccines as if they had undergone the same rigorous testing standards as their counterparts, audaciously proclaiming, "This vaccine is unlike anything ever seen before. It rivals any vaccine in history in terms of safety and effectiveness." Although the president has repeatedly made unfounded claims about supposed COVID-19 treatments such as Hydroxychloroquine, promoting a drug that has not even been approved by the FDA is a new low and represents his lack of commitment to the scientific process.

An extreme desire to reopen the economy has been the driving force behind President Trump's unwavering support for these unproven vaccines. The Republican party, aligning with his agenda, has consistently prioritized economic interests over public health and safety. From prematurely ending lockdowns to pushing for the reopening of schools in high-risk areas, they have consistently undermined crucial safety measures such as mask-wearing and social distancing. American lives are being sacrificed on the altar of big business and economic success. Now, the party brazenly advocates injecting the entire nation with unapproved RNA drugs, all in the hope of hastily opening up the country and ignoring the virus while the pandemic is still raging.

This audacious disregard for public health and safety underscores the Republican Party's allegiance to big business and their unwavering determination to prioritize economic gains over the lives of the American people. By recklessly advocating for the widespread distribution of an unapproved vaccine, they are showing their willingness to gamble with the health and well-being of the nation.

The consequences of this dangerous game should not be overlooked. Lives are at stake, and the American people deserve leaders who prioritize their safety above all else. President Trump's deceptive claims only serve to further erode public trust and exacerbate an already dire situation. It is high time we turn to the guidance of experts, adhere to scientific guidelines, and place the well-being of our citizens at the forefront. Everyone wants to return to "normal American life," but there are no hasty shortcuts to get there.

Fox News: Democrats' Vaccine Hesitation: A Ploy to Extend Lockdowns and Control the American People

In a stunning display of hypocrisy and political maneuvering, Democrats and their liberal media allies continue to sow doubt and fear surrounding the newly developed COVID-19 vaccine. While President Trump and his administration have tirelessly worked to expedite the development of a vaccine, Democrats seem intent on prolonging the economic devastation caused by lockdowns, all in the name of power and control.

The promise of a COVID-19 vaccine represents a beacon of hope for millions of Americans, yearning for a return to normalcy. President Trump's Operation Warp Speed has accelerated the vaccine development process, meaning that an effective and safe solution is within our grasp. However, instead of embracing this triumph of American ingenuity, Democrats shamelessly choose to smear it.

The Democrats have long been proponents of stringent lockdown measures, taking advantage of the opportunity to exercise control over the American people. With businesses shuttered and the economy in tatters, they have seized this opportunity to expand government overreach, consolidate power, and advance their Socialist agenda. Consequently, they see the promise of a vaccine that could bring an end to the COVID-19 pandemic in our nation as a threat. Much of the news media, serving as their mouthpiece, amplifies their narrative, painting the vaccine as a potential danger rather than the lifesaving breakthrough it truly is.

By perpetuating fears about the vaccine's safety, they hope to maintain their stranglehold on the American people, exploiting the crisis to further their political agenda. By advocating prolonged lockdowns, they are willingly sacrificing the livelihoods of hardworking Americans. While millions suffer from joblessness and economic uncertainty, Democratic elites sit comfortably in their ivory towers. They want to keep small businesses closed, families separated, and the economy in shambles, all to exert their authority and push their radical agenda. The vaccine represents a threat to their power, as it offers a pathway to reopening the economy and restoring normalcy to the lives of everyday Americans.

It is time for the American people to see through the Democrats' charade and embrace the vaccine as a vital tool in our fight against the pandemic. President Trump and his administration have worked tirelessly to provide us with a solution, and it is our duty to seize this opportunity for a brighter future, reopen our economy, and reclaim our lives from the clutches of radical Leftist control.

The Atlantic: Allegations of Election Fraud and Foreign Interference Surround Trump's Controversial Victory

In a shocking turn of events, Donald Trump emerged victorious in the 2020 presidential election, but not without a cloud of controversy hanging over his triumph. With anonymous sources coming forward, a disturbing picture of election fraud and foreign interference begins to emerge, casting doubt on the legitimacy of Trump's victory.

Multiple counties and states across the nation are now under scrutiny for potential irregularities in the electoral process. Whistleblowers allege that voting machines were tampered with and ballots were fraudulently cast in favor of Trump. These claims raise serious questions about the integrity of the election and the extent to which outside forces may have influenced the outcome.

The specter of Russian and Venezuelan involvement looms large in these allegations. Sources, who wish to remain anonymous for their safety, claim that Trump colluded with these foreign powers to manipulate the election results. The exact nature of this collusion remains unclear, but suspicions of backdoor deals and covert operations cast a shadow over Trump's presidency.

The allegations gain further credibility with the revelation that anonymous insiders within the Trump campaign were allegedly involved in rigging voting machines to favor the then-candidate. This shocking information suggests a calculated effort to undermine the democratic process and secure Trump's victory at all costs.

As legal battles ensue, the potential for an election reversal hangs in the balance. Several court cases have been filed, challenging the results, with evidence pointing to widespread irregularities and potential criminal actions. If these allegations hold true, the consequences for Trump could go beyond political damage, potentially leading to serious legal jeopardy.

The Atlantic reached out to the Trump administration for comment, but no response was received at the time of publication. The President's supporters argue that these allegations are baseless and politically motivated, attempting to delegitimize Trump's triumph. However, the weight of evidence and the growing chorus of sources suggest a deeper and more troubling picture.

In the face of these allegations, the country stands at a crossroads. The credibility of our electoral process hangs in the balance, and the American people deserve answers. The truth must be uncovered, and those responsible for any wrongdoing must be held accountable, regardless of party affiliation. The repercussions of allowing such actions to go unchallenged could open the door to authoritarian tendencies and the erosion of democratic norms. The urgency of investigating these allegations, holding those responsible accountable, and safeguarding the integrity of our democratic institutions has never been more critical.

Breitbart News: Unmasking Election Fraud Myths: Baseless Allegations Aim to Undermine the Fair Election of President Trump

In the aftermath of the recent election, a firestorm of controversy has engulfed the nation, with allegations of widespread election fraud dominating the headlines. President Donald Trump, a staunch defender of fair elections, took to Twitter to voice his concerns, boldly stating, “The so-called claims of election fraud are just another sad and pathetic attempt by the Failing Left to tear apart our Great Democracy. It’s a total witch hunt, a hoax to deny the will of the incredible American People. Sad!”

The election process was fortified with rigorous safeguards, encompassing voter ID laws, ballot signature verification, and meticulous auditing procedures. These measures were put in place to uphold the integrity of the election, leaving no room for widespread fraud to occur. The allegations of election fraud, linking President Trump to Russia and Venezuela, have been propagated by those who refuse to accept the outcome of a fair and democratic election. No plausible mechanism by which fraud could be committed on a large enough scale to sway a presidential election has been brought to light. These claims, lacking substantial evidence, serve as nothing more than a desperate attempt to delegitimize the electoral process.

While a number of legal cases have been filed to challenge the election results, none have yet produced concrete evidence to support the claims of fraud. The Left has resorted to using the court system as a battleground to undermine the will of the American people and sow distrust. The court system, designed to uphold justice and constitutional principles, must be allowed to run its course free from political interference.

As patriots and defenders of the truth, it is our duty to unmask the prevailing bias and deep-seated animosity of the Left towards President Trump, which has made them unwilling to acknowledge his potential for victory. The American people deserve transparency and honesty, not the deceitful tactics employed by those who refuse to accept the outcome of a fair and legitimate election. It is crucial that we stand together and reject politically motivated attempts to undermine our electoral process.